

BROWN-ATKINSON

Thronged With Relatives and Friends.

Interesting Scenes on the Wharf.
Showers of Rice and Flowers.

The chancel of St. Andrew's Cathedral was most beautifully decorated yesterday morning, the occasion being the marriage of Mr. Arthur M. Brown, Marshal of the Republic of Hawaii, to Miss Maise Atkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alatau T. Atkinson. The prevailing colors were green and white, and seldom have more artistic decorations been seen in the Cathedral. Potted ferns and palms and pampas grass were distributed in such a manner as to make a perfect background of green, over which was scattered white asters, calla lilies, marguerites and stephanotis.

Just here it might be interesting to know that all the ferns and palms in the Cathedral, were grown and carefully cared for by the bride during her spare moments at home. In this work she took a great deal of pleasure.

The ceremony was announced for 10 o'clock, but some time before that hour the church was filled with invited guests. The mother of the bride occupied the front seat on the right side, while in the seat on the opposite side were the mother of the groom and relatives.

At five minutes before 10 o'clock, Mr. Wray Taylor, who presided at the organ, commenced to play a wedding march by Hime. Before the last strains of the march had died away the bride party was announced, and the choir of the Second Congregation sang the hymn, "How Welcome Was the Call," while the bride party marched slowly up the aisle to the chancel, where they were met by the Rev. Alex. Mackintosh, who performed the ceremony. Miss Zoe Atkinson was maid of honor, and Maj. George C. Potter the best man. The bride was given away by her father, Alatau T. Atkinson, and the responses by both bride and groom were quite audible. As the first part of the ceremony proceeded, the music of De Koven's song, "Oh, Promise Me," could be heard, being played very softly on the organ. As the party marched to the altar, the psalm, "Blessed Are All They That Fear the Lord," was sung to a chant. The organ was subdued. Mr. Mackintosh finished the marriage service, and the whole party filed out to the vestry to sign the register. While this was being done, the choir and organ rendered a wedding march by Warneford, which is only used on the occasion of the marriage of a member of the Cathedral's Second Congregation choir. When the newly-married couple left the Cathedral, it was to the strains of Wagner's "Bridal March," from "Lohengrin."

The bride was attired in a white silk dress, covered with white chignon, with pearl trimmings and Honiton lace. The hat which she wore was trimmed with white feathers, and a bunch of maiden-hair ferns, tied with a white satin ribbon, was carried.

Miss Atkinson, the maid of honor, wore lavender silk, covered with white muslin, figured with violets. Her hat was of white chiffon, decorated with violets and gauze ribbon. A bunch of shaded purple asters was carried.

Mrs. Atkinson, mother of the bride, wore lavender, with a white organdie overdress figured with chrysanthemums. Trimmings were of black French lace. Her bonnet was of shaded lilacs.

The groom and George C. Potter, his best man, as well as the four ushers—Robert W. Atkinson, A. St. M. Mackintosh, J. Q. Wood and J. O. Carter, Jr.—were dressed in spotless white from head to foot.

The wedding ceremony over the newly-married couple left the church, and followed by the maid of honor and best man, got into an open carriage and were driven to the McGrew residence, on Hotel street, remaining only long enough for the bride to don her traveling dress.

In the meantime, a large number of the friends of Mr. and Mrs. Brown had gathered at the Inter-Island wharf to say good-bye before their departure on the honeymoon trip to Molokai on the steamer Mauna Loa. Deputy Marshal Hitchcock, Chester Doyle, J. A. Gilman and the ushers had bought a bag of rice and were safely stowed away on the upper deck of the Mauna Loa.

Captain Parker arrived soon after the service with a number of the best-looking and largest men on the police force. A pathway was cleared through the crowd to the gangway, and the officers stationed in two rows to keep people from pushing in again.

It was about 10:45 o'clock when Mr. and Mrs. Brown arrived at the wharf, the latter in a natty white duck traveling dress, with a white sailor hat. They alighted and stood for fully 10 minutes bidding adieu to their friends. Then when they finally started toward the gangway a shower of marguerites, white roses and pale asters followed them.

At the foot of the gangway Marshal Brown cast one look upwards and there saw several hands raised. In a moment a shower of rice came down on the two people struggling to reach the gangway.

More congratulations and wishes for a bon voyage on the deck of the Mauna Loa, more white leis and rice, and then the steamer set out for Pukou. There the Deputy Marshal's whaleboat met Mr. and Mrs. Brown and took them ashore. A short ride overland and they were at the home of J. K. Brown, a brother of the groom, where a three-weeks' honeymoon will be spent.

Many beautiful presents were received by the happy couple. The choir of the Second Congregation, of which the bride has been a valued member for several years, sent a gold St. Andrew's cross pin and an illuminated address. The police force did not forget Marshal Brown, and they turned out in a body at the Cathedral, forming on either side of the driveway as the bride and groom left the church for the steamer.

TIMELY TOPICS

AUGUST 19, 1897.

In the majority of instances when a man purchases a windmill he discovers that, though there is a sufficiency of "wind" power given away freely by the salesman, the only time the mill "goes" is when it is leaving the store.

There are scores of so-called "best-on-earth" windmills foisted upon a too credulous public, while there is but one mill that will attend to its business when all others fail: and that one is the Aermotor.

It is so immeasurably superior to its many competitors, and its merits so universally admitted that we would not devote our space to the subject were it not to let you know that we have them, both pumping and geared, and in connection with them have Gould's and Krogh's Triple Action, Syphons and many other makes of Pumps, together with Patent Water Tanks (wooden) in from 500 to 10,000 gallons capacity.

The great beauty about the "Aermotor" is that it requires no attention whatever—just a little oil occasionally.

Amongst the many purchasers are numbered:

Minister Cooper, who has one at Manoa;
Minister Damon, one at Moanalua Ranch;
Mr. Paul Isenberg, four at Wailalee (one of which is pumping water a distance of 4000 feet, and to a height of 150 feet).
